

VERA KOLODZIG

Vera Kolodzig is a Portuguese actress with a consolidated career spanning television, theatre, and cinema, standing out as one of the most recognized faces in Portuguese fiction. She began her artistic training in childhood and later graduated with a degree in Contemporary Media Practice from the University of Westminster in London.

In cinema, she stands out in the feature film 'Pedro e Inês', directed by António Ferreira, which became the most-watched Portuguese film of the year in cinemas.

In theatre, she was part of the cast of the show 'Lulu', co-directed by Nuno Carinhas and Nuno M. Cardoso, and her performance also features prominently in the production 'Os Monólogos da Vagina', directed by Paulo Sousa Costa, 'Os 39 Degraus', directed by Cláudio Hochman, and 'A Dama do Maxim', directed by Fernando Gomes, among others.

On television, she made her debut starring at the age of 14 in 'Jardins Proibidos', a role she reprised in the homonymous sequel a few years later. She also joined the main casts of several highly successful productions such as 'Espírito Indomável', 'Dentro', 'Filha do Mar', 'Deixa Que Te Leve', 'Doida por Ti', 'Ilha dos Amores', 'Prisioneira', and 'Vitória', among others. In streaming, her role stands out in the series 'O Clube', directed by Patrícia Sequeira.

Languages

Portuguese, English